Speech transitions are words and phrases that allow you to smoothly move from one point to another so that your speech flows and your presentation is unified. This makes it easier for the audience to understand your argument and without transitions the audience may be confused as to how one point relates to another and they may think you're...

How to Add Transitions to Powerpoint: 10 Steps (with Pictures)
Add transitions only where introducing new ideas. Don't oversee them. Go through the paper to make sure they make sense. Don't keep adding transitions in the same paragraph. Start by creating an outline, so you know what ideas to share and how. Don't completely rely on transitions to signal relationships. Use different transitions for each idea.
